Lou's preferred approach is to tie data to action – where he often gets down in the trenches, rolls up his sleeves and makes things happen.

As Chief Financial Officer for IPC Global Solutions Lou plays a key role in establishing solid financial controls that are tied to strategically executable operational goals. Over the last 25 plus years Lou has carved out a corporate career in which he's meticulously managed the comprehensive details of the finances and operations of many growing businesses. His preferred approach is to tie data to action – where he often gets down in the trenches, rolls up his sleeves and makes things happen. Every day he brings that same work ethic and ability to problem-solve on multiple mission critical levels at IPC.

Prior to joining IPC Global Solutions, Lou's career included positions at Eastern Fisheries, American Gem Seafoods, Torey Plastics of America and Universal Univis, where he developed valuable insight into the operations of large-scale manufacturing businesses across multiple industries.

Lou graduated from Bryant University with a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration with a concentration in accounting. Lou lives in historic Plymouth, MA, home of the Mayflower and site of the famous Plymouth Rock. In his leisure time you're likely to find Lou spending time with his wife and two sons, golfing, biking, or enjoying all of the wonderful things that scenic Cape Cod has to offer.
